because the meibomian glands are holocrine in nature, the secretions contain both polar lipids (aqueous-lipid interface) and nonpolar lipids (air-tear interface), as well as proteinaceous material.